A tree grew under the sea

A tree that grew under the sea

Eyes always open like pockets, mouth always wet with sweat, even his water to drink, his body is very dry and hard like the skin of a dead cow, he wants to eat the fruits of the sea tree.

Seventy years have passed, his construction tools have become very old, he stands looking across, indeed he has built many buildings but he sees no fruit.

His family abandoned him saying he was of no use to him, why?, He knelt down and cried, regretting the years he spent trying to eat the fruits of the sea tree and now he has taken his hands away.

After five years, the old man breathed his last, who will bury him?, stop running after the wind, stop looking for those fruits because they are dry and be careful because the seas in which they are are full of crocodiles who also want to eat the fruits
